DISCIPLINE, TESTIMONY

One Keeper Called Others Suckers for Giving Evidence, It Is Said.
TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 22.—Evidence of lack of discipline at the New Jersey State prison was disclosed by the testimony of Charles H. Clayton of the State Department of Institutions and Agencies, before State Commissioner Burdette G. Lewis, of that department, during the latter's probe into conditions at the institution. Clayton asserted that Chief Deputy Prison Keeper James E. Kersey, whose dismissal has been demanded by Lewis for alleged conduct unbecoming a prison official, has continually interfered with smooth running of various shops of institutions.

He also charged Paul McLaughlin, one of the deputy keepers called Theodore S. Sanders, another deputy keeper, and others "stool pigeons" and "suckers" for testimony before Lewis.
